9/11 Memorial Glade opens

The new 9/11 Memorial Glade at the National September 11 Memorial debuted on Thursday in Lower Manhattan. The Memorial Glade was created to honor the first responders who became sick or have died from exposure to toxins in the aftermath of the attacks and recovery efforts. The signature piece of the memorial are six stone monoliths that are inlaid with World Trade Center steel. JEFF TOMKO | GETTY IMAGES

NYers now have a better way to get to the beach

Extended Rockaway shuttle and LIRR service will make getting to the beach easier this summer.

ALEXANDRA ALEXA
letters@metro.us

The MTA is aiming to make your summer a bit sweeter with a few special train services that will help you get to the beach faster. Extended service on the Rockaway shuttle and extra LIRR service to South Fork have already kicked in, while the popular LIRR $1 Summer Saturdays program will begin this Saturday, June 1.

On weekends for the rest of the summer, the Rockaway Park/Beach 116 Street S shuttle service will be extended to Rockaway Boulevard to accommodate the increased beach traffic. Beachgoers can transfer to the S from any A train at Rockaway Boulevard. This seasonal service runs from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on weekends and holidays, including the Fourth of July and Labor Day.

The LIRR is offering extra service on its Montauk Branch on weekends this summer, with several extra eastbound trains running on Fridays and extra westbound trains returning on Sundays.

Even better, the popular $1 Summer Saturdays program that launched last year is back this weekend. Every Saturday from June 1 to Aug. 24, the LIRR will honor all monthly tickets for travel to and from all LIRR stations, regardless of what stations are printed on the ticket. In addition, monthly ticketholders will be able to bring up to four additional travelers for only $1 per person each way.

"With so many amazing summertime destinations across Long Island, we hope this program offers a great way for our customers to explore the entire Island with family and friends," said LIRR President Phil Eng in a statement.

Keeping Gov Ball 'New York's music festival' with a personal touch

We spoke with the festival's director, Jennifer Stiles.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Today is the kickoff of New York's largest summer music festival, Governors Ball, on Randall's Island — three full days of music, food and activities. Ever since the festival's humble beginnings in 2011, where it was simply one day of music on two stages on Governors Island, the festival has grown exponentially in every single way.

Jennifer Stiles, the general manager of Founders Entertainment and festival director of Gov Ball NYC, has been working on the festival since its inaugural year, and as it has blown up to where it is now, Stiles is still proud with how much of a personal touch they have been able to keep despite its size.

"We always strive to add something new and exciting for the fans, but also for ourselves," said Stiles. "Founders Entertainment is a small team. There's nine of us. So, we put a lot of our own creativity into this festival as New Yorkers to make it feel like New York's festival. But also things that we like, we like to bring to the festival. That's where some of the new ideas came from this year, for sure."

Some of these new ideas include a fully functional NYC bodega with stocked essentials such as deodorant, drinks and snacks, bagels, and even an ATM if you need some quick cash. I wonder if they'll dispense 10s or 20s?

One thing is for certain, Stiles and her team are making sure to keep things fresh and with as much of a personal touch as possible. For Stiles, she wouldn't have it any other way.

"I think one of the great things about Gov Ball is, I don't think that has changed for us," she explained. "We are still that small team that is brainstorming together to come up with those ideas. One of the things I love about this festival is how much personal touch it has. I know the people who are coming up with some of these things and view them as extensions of them."

Everything you need to know about Governors Ball 2019

Governors Ball 2019 has an incredible lineup set to rock out on Randall's Island. Let's get to the rundown:

When is Governor's Ball 2019?

Gov Ball NYC will be kicking off Friday, May 31, and ending Sunday, June 2. Each day, Governors Ball will open its doors at 11:45 a.m. and will close at 11 p.m., after the final headliners of the evening.

Who will be playing Governors Ball 2019?

Get ready for this. Friday, May 31: Tyler, the Creator is the headliner, along with Lil Wayne and Brockhampton. Mitski, The Voidz, Rolling Blackouts Coastal Fever and Still Woozy are some of the supporting acts on opening day. This lineup sets a high-water mark, which means the weekend days are loaded.

Saturday, June 1: Florence + The Machine, Major Lazer and The 1975 headline Saturday night. They are supported by Kacey Musgraves, Vince Staples, Lord Huron, Sunflower Bean and Tobi Lou. How could the closing ceremonies top that? Good question...

Sunday, June 2: New York's hometown garage-rock revival giants The Strokes are at the top of the last night's bill. Who else is bringing it home? As far as rap goes, it's only natural that the proud son of Queensbridge, Nas — first known as Nasty but times have changed as he spent time in the game and kept his mind on fame — take the stage. SZA, Beast Coast, Bob Moses, Chelsea Cutler and Jack Harlow are supporting.

Is it sold out? How much are tickets for Governors

Ball 2019?

Rejoice! Tickets are still available. If you are looking to purchase single-day general admission tickets, tickets will run you $115 plus fees. If you are planning on swinging by for all three days with standard general admission tickets, that will cost $305 plus fees. As of Wednesday, Friday VIP tickets were still available for $255. Saturday's VIP and Platinum tickets are already gone. Friday and Sunday individual VIP tickets will run you $255. The three-day VIP tickets are going for $705. Friday, Saturday and Sunday individual day VIP Plus tickets each go for $700, and the three-day VIP Plus package will cost a whopping $1,950.

What if it rains during Governors Ball?

Tough break. Governors Ball has a "rain or shine" policy, but they will offer refunds in the event of dangerous storm conditions. But — knowing from experience — it might be in your best interest to wear clothes and shoes you don't care about, and a raincoat if there is a slight chance of rain. That way you can drink and dance like a fool with no worries. And isn't that the whole point of going to a festival anyway?

How can I get to Governors Ball?

Shuttle buses will pick up in front of Brooklyn Bowl in the hippest 'hood on Earth, Williamsburg, from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. They'll drop you right at the East Entrance. Return trips will start at 8 p.m. The good people of Gov Ball say that this is the easiest way to get to the festival from Brooklyn. Tickets will run you anywhere between $30 and $65.

Ferries are the easiest way to get to the festival from Manhattan. They set sail to and from 34th Street and FDR Drive all day long, each day. They'll bring you to the West Entrance of the festival. Tickets range from $26 to $60.

11 More charges dropped on R. Kelly

New felony sex assault and abuse charges were filed against the singer.

Grammy-winning singer R. Kelly was charged on Thursday with 11 new felony counts of sexual assault and abuse that could, if he is convicted, send the R & B singer to prison for 30 years, the Chicago Sun-Times reported.

Kelly was indicted by a Cook County Grand Jury on four counts of aggravated criminal sexual assault, two counts of criminal sexual assault by force and two counts of aggravated criminal sexual abuse, documents posted on the newspaper's website showed.

He was also indicted on three counts of aggravated criminal sexual abuse against a victim between the ages of 13 to 16, according to the documents. The allegations center on someone identified only as "J.P." in January 2010, with no other details provided.

Kelly's attorney Steve Greenberg was not immediately available for comment. Kelly has denied abuse allegations for decades. In 2008, the singer was tried on child pornography charges and found not guilty.

Kelly, 52, pleaded not guilty in February to charges that he sexually assaulted three teenage girls and a fourth woman. The charges were brought after seven women, including his ex-wife, appeared on a Lifetime television documentary and accused him of emotional and sexual abuse.

He spent a weekend in jail on the sex charges before being released on $100,000 bail on Feb. 25.

The new charges carry a sentence of 30 years for Kelly if he is convicted, the Sun-Times reported. REUTERS

Probable No. 1 NBA pick Zion signs with CAA

The former Duke star is expected to sign one of the largest shoe contracts in history.

Projected No. 1 draft pick Zion Williamson will be represented by CAA Sports.

The agency announced their partnership with Williamson, who played one season at Duke, on Thursday.

ESPN's Adrian Wojnarski reported that CAA basketball agent Austin Brown and executive Lisa Joseph-Metelus will represent Williamson. CAA will be charged with navigating Williamson through various endorsement deals, including what is expected to be one of the largest shoe contracts ever.

"In my lifetime, I think it's going to be the biggest bidding war ever done," Sonny Vaccaro, a former marketing executive with

Nike, Adidas and Reebok, told ESPN last month. "I would put them all on go."

With CAA, Brown represents a number of NBA players, including Brooklyn Nets guard D'Angelo Russell. Brown played college basketball at DePauw.

Joseph-Metelus worked with recently retired Dwyane Wade during his career.

Williamson was the NCAA Player of the Year. The New Orleans Pelicans are expected to select him with the No. 1 overall pick of the June 20 draft.

In the 2018-19 season, the 6-foot-7 forward played in 33 games for the Blue Devils, averaging 22.6 points and 8.9 rebounds per game while shooting 68 percent from the field. REUTERS

Why Aren't Doctors Telling Knee Arthritis Sufferers About These Two Often Successful Treatments?

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

NYC -If you suffer with knee arthritis pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications. With minimal or no results

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis a lot of knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers. Patients travel from all over the state to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation - the good and the bad...

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid."

Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during viscosupplementation treatments... doctors precisely inject directly into the knee joint.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the procedure is slightly off, the formula will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NYC Pain MD use advanced digital imaging so they visually guide the injection accurately into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that performing joint injections without imaging miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have had prior viscosupplementation without this special digital imaging without good results - this may be the exact reason why.

That's why NYC Pain MD even takes it one step further. They do not just use one form of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation "medicines" also come in several different formulas.

Just like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. While many doctors only use one formula, the experts at NYC Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what the best one is for you.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

#2 Radiofrequency Neurotomy

This treatment is called, "Radiofrequency Neurotomy." RF for short RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are known as "Genicular nerves."

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to the Genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, Genicular Neurotomy (GRF) is performed for long term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published November 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1, 4 and 12 weeks, respectively. No patient reported a post-procedure adverse event during the follow-up period. RF neurotomy of

Advanced Imaging Allows Doctors To Pin-Point Treatments And Relieve Knee Arthritis Pain

Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers? Research shows joint injections done without advanced imaging misses the joint about 30% of the time. Now doctors can put lubricating fluid directly into the arthritis joint that may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

Genicular nerves leads to significant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee OA pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication, physical rehab or viscosupplementation do not offer good enough results.

RF may be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

But - RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be debilitating and this procedure may be the only thing that helps and give you after surgery relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

NYC Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NYC Pain MD. If you would like to schedule a screening, just call 877-380-8537.

The screenings fill up fast every month. This screening is no cost and there absolutely no obligation.

More good news: for qualified candidates, insurances and Medicare often cover these treatments.

Taron Egerton as Elton John in "Rocketman."
PARAMOUNT PICTURES

How electrifying sound mixing and editing bring life to Elton John's story in 'Rocketman'

We spoke with director Dexter Fletcher about the film's humongous sound.
PAT KING

Fans of Elton John know that the glammed-out rocker's music changed the world, but with the release of "Rocketman," the R-rated musical starring Taron Egerton as Captain Fantastic himself, the music and sound editing in the film could change the way movies are made from this point forward.

Partnering with Dolby Atmos, the film's director Dexter Fletcher and composer Giles Martin have used sound editing in a completely new way to help Sir Elton's songs explode with life on the screen. By seeing the film in a Dolby Atmos setting, moviegoers will be able to follow Egerton as he walks out onstage, hearing each instrument mixed in its correct location onstage, and the roaring from the crowd right in front of him. In other words, while so much attention has been paid in recent films to enhancing the visual experience with 3-D technology, seeing "Rocketman" in this new Dolby surround sound will introduce audiences to a brand-new form of 3-D audio that they have never experienced.

"If you kind of look back into the history of how sound was mixed, especially for 5.1 or 7.1 to some degree, everything you were told and taught as a mixer we tell you not to do with a format like Dolby Atmos," explains Stuart Bowling, director of Content and Creative Relations at Dolby Laboratories, during a discussion at the "Rocketman" at Dolby SoHo installation in Manhattan. "An example of that would be dialogue off a screen. In regular cinemas, like a 5.1 or a 7.1, if you move dialogue off a screen, because there are many speakers inside a movie theater, the entire wall would illuminate with dialogue if the dialogue was panned into the surrounds. People would go 'Whoa!' It would change you out of the movie, which is traditionally a no-no. But in Dolby At-

"The beauty of the sound and what you can do with the music and the mix and all of the instrumentation afterward when you have Giles Martin go, 'I'll just go to Abbey Road and re-record that!,' which is what he goes off and does, is that you can layer that and go off and build it and extract a bigger palette than you've been playing with."

mos what we can do is, we can move dialogue off of the screen and we can isolate it down to an individual loudspeaker and it has the same frequency and timbre as the screen channels. So there is no attenuation when it moves and retains the full fidelity. But now it gives a greater offscreen performance and enhancement to the environment that the filmmaker never had before."

For Fletcher, having these new tools at his disposal gave him the ability to reach for the fantastical heights that the film's subject truly deserved.

"It's the beauty of where the technology is at, is that we create those moments to a track that is completely temp [existing film track], really," says Fletcher. "Sometimes Taron is singing live and we record it. Some of 'Crocodile Rock' he sings live. Some of 'I'm Still Standing,' a lot of that is live. 'Your Song,' he does. The beauty of the sound and what you can do with the music and the mix and all of the instrumentation afterward when you have Giles Martin go, 'I'll just go to Abbey Road and re-record that!,' which is what he goes off and does, is that you can layer that and go off and build it and extract a bigger palette than you've been playing with. You cut and you build and you work to this temp. Because that's it, really, isn't it? It's the one thing that you can go back and layer. Then you start to mix and it's like, 'Oh my god, it's everywhere!'"

With this new audio technology, Fletcher hopes that people in the audience will feel like they are in the room as Elton is creating some of his timeless classics.

"When something like 'Your Song' happens, originally it's really simple. There's a guy sitting at the piano. Taron is singing it. But, Giles gets that and when we've done the edit and then bring the strings at a certain point and you feel that tingle on the back of your neck — that's for everyone in the audience. You know that music has that unifying quality. When the right note hits at the right time, it's kind of hard to resist or deny."

"Rocketman" hits theaters this Friday, May 31.

Kevin Morby the searcher

We spoke with the musician about the religious imagery on his new album "Oh My God." PAT KING

Kevin Morby is looking for an answer. The Kansas City native has been creating music since the mid-2000s with such indie-rock darlings as Woods and The Babies, his band with Vivian Girls' Cassie Ramone.

But after striking out for his own solo career in 2013, he has been releasing fantastic folk-based records that have paid service to the poetry of the human condition with songs that channel the still, contemplative moments when the world is catching up to the sun.

His newest record, "Oh My God," finds Morby creating narratives using religious imagery in a way that frames concepts like "heaven" and "God" as beginnings and endings to life's journey, rather than using them to preach or inject any true judgmental fire and brimstone. For Morby, these are just universal themes of finding redemption after falling into darkness.

"For me, it's still a part of our vocabulary," explains Morby over the phone from his home in Kansas City. "I think that no matter where you're from, there's religion as a part of your environment in some way, shape or form, and certainly where I'm from it is very much a part of it. A question I get asked a lot with this record is, what other religious music do I like? Or, was I listening to a lot of religious music when I made this album. The answer is 'no' but it's also kind of 'yes' in that everything is just sort of religious. Like, everything. It's pretty hard to find something that is not talking about God in one thing to another. And so for me when I've used this vocabulary and I've used certain imagery throughout my whole career, I never thought anything of it and I never thought that it would come off as sounding like religious music or something. But people would always sort of bring it up.

So I kind of made this album as a way to just get it all out on the table and have something that really follows that wordplay, but in doing so kind of show that they're just tools to tell a story."

The tone of the record is very gospel in nature, with a warm, cavernous riverbed mix of piano lead songs and a female choir assisting Morby's relaxed conversational voice as he tells stories of heartache, life and death. You get the sense that Morby spends a lot of his time pondering the questions we have never been able to answer about our existence. These are questions worth asking, and he has no problem using the language he knows to tell the story.

"There's a Leonard Cohen where he says, 'Every song is political,' and I want to agree with that," Morby says. "I mean, that's true but I also think that every song is religious in some way. And yeah, as I said, this is just a good way to kind of really explore that. It's almost one of those things where people think that, like, when it is religious, I think maybe a natural reaction for a lot of people would be to stop doing that. But I really wanted to go deeper with it."

On one of the album's standout moments, "I Want to Be Clean," Morby wonders if the only true way to be absolved from the harm you have done to others is to either accelerate toward the end of life or revert back to the purity you had once you were born. "Just to think one day we were just strangers," he sings.

"Oh, how I've ruined you. And oh, how you've ruined me, too."

"Life is messy," says Morby. "You're going to have interactions on this Earth and you're going to hurt people in the process, and you're going to get hurt by people in the process. So there's really no returning to that sort of instant youth, which is what that song is sort of about."

Like, just a feeling of — it's like a person who gets an addiction, like a drug addiction or an alcohol addiction, and then they get clean. That's a beautiful, wonderful thing, but you'll never be able to reach that point in you that was sort of before the storm. You can find this clarity after the storm in a lot of things. You're more clear-headed than you were before because you've gone through something. That song is really just about wanting to not hurt anyone or anything just by being alive. It's something that is part of the human condition."

Cheers to celebrating the start of summer with rosé from the Rosé Mansion. JAMES COLETTA FOR ROSÉ MANSION

Fun summer activities to do in NYC

Although New York City is busy in all seasons, there's something special about spending summertime in the city. New York City is called the City That Never Sleeps for a good reason. This summer, NYC is full of amazing activities and exhibits. Here are a few must-see things to do. BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

Summer is finally here and things in New York City are heating up. Trains are getting busier, the smell of the subway starts to permeate your nose, and the sound of children laughing can be heard from every park. Whether you're an outdoorsy kind of person or prefer to spend your time with inside with the air conditioner blasting, New York City has something for everyone. From museums to pop-ups, there is always something going on in the City That Never Sleeps. With summer in full swing, here are a few different events happening around the city for children and adults alike.

Enjoy some rosé at the Rosé Mansion
The Rosé Mansion is a wine lover's paradise. It is a wine tasting experience that covers everything ticket-holders need to know about summer's favorite drink. It takes the attendee through 14 different rooms to explore, taste and of course, share photos on social media. In addition to the regular experience, Rosé Mansion will also be holding wine tasting workshops. Through September, Monday and Wednesday 2-10 p.m., Thursday 2-11 p.m., Friday 1 p.m.-midnight, Saturday 11 a.m.-midnight, Sunday 11 a.m.-10 p.m., $35-$45, Manhattan Mall, 111 W. 32nd St.

Go glamping
Collective Retreats is bringing glamping to Governors Island. This summer they're offering three varieties of luxurious tents available to rent on Governors Island. Some of the perks they are offering with this vacation include morning yoga, drinks with a view of Lady Liberty, lawn games (such as life-sized Jenga) and more. $150-$500, Collective Governors Island, Craig Road North

See the "Camp" exhibit at the Met
Every year, the Met hosts a fashion-themed exhibition at the Costume Institute. This year the theme is "Camp," which focuses on the use of humor, irony, theatricality and exaggeration in fashion, which goes back to the 17th century. This exhibition includes pieces from Moschino, Gucci, Off-White, Marc Jacobs and more. Through Sept. 8, $25 (or pay-as-you-wish for New York state residents), Sunday-Thursday 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m., Friday-Saturday 10 a.m.-9 p.m.,

1000 Fifth Ave.

Check out the "Jim Henson Exhibition"
The Museum of the Moving Image is the only museum in the United States dedicated to all things moving image. From its history and techniques to its technology and art, it covers everything. This summer they have a ton of events and different exhibitions. They currently have exhibits on sports-themed video games, crossing over art mediums, an exhibit on costume design for "The Ballad of Buster Scruggs," and one on glass slides. The museum is well-known for the "Jim Henson Exhibition," and this summer they are offering a guided tour of it. Through June 29, $9-$20, Wednesday-Thursday 10:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Friday 10:30 a.m.-8 p.m. (free admission 4-8 p.m.), Saturday-Sunday 10:30 a.m.-6 p.m., 36-01 35th Ave. (at 37th Street), Astoria

Learn how to navigate the subways
Although exploring the transportation system might not be at the top of the list for commuters this summer, the "Navigating New York" exhibit at the New York Transit Museum should be. This exhibit talks all about the history of the transportation system in New York and how it has transformed over the years. Through Sept. 8, $5-$10, Tuesday-Friday 10 a.m.-4 p.m., weekends 11 a.m.-5 p.m., 99 Schermerhorn St., Brooklyn

Bruce Campbell talks his new hosting gig on Ripley's Believe it or Not

The reboot of the famous franchise with the legendary actor will premiere Sunday, June 9 on Travel Channel. PAT KING

Ever since the debut of his legendary character Ash Williams in the Sam Raimi camp-horror classic, "The Evil Dead," actor Bruce Campbell has been an icon for all things considered "slightly off" in popular culture. Campbell will be lending his chiseled chin and infectious charisma as the new host of Travel Channel's reboot of the classic franchise "Ripley's Believe it or Not," premiering Sunday, June 9 at 9 p.m. We caught up with Campbell to talk about the show's strange yet uplifting stories and, of course, all things Ash.

Throughout your career, you've become this icon of all things that are slightly off center, in some ways. And for fans of yours, putting you as the new host of "Ripley's Believe it or Not" is kind of like a no brainer.

I think it's a good fit because these are people that we're profiling... they're not your normal next door neighbor. Each one of them has a crazy story to tell and for us, we're trying to just celebrate it, not pointing our finger at it and go "Ew," you know? There's a lot of people overcoming really crazy obstacles. Just like the character Ash [from "Evil Dead"]. I guess they have that in common.

What initially drew you to the project? Have you always been a fan of "Ripley's"?

Of course, I knew "Ripley's"! Everybody knew "Ripley's," you know. As an actor, if you are gonna host something you might as well host something that people have heard of, which is "Ripley's". And I just thought it was cool. I had some old "Ripley's" books at my house and I read a lot of books with all of these really cool, weird illustrations. And now they have a guy who does the same kind of illustrations and is still working at "Ripley's". So it is kind of cool to see it. Right?

Have you always been drawn to these strange stories?

I like human stories. I like humans overcoming tragedy. A lot of the people who we're featuring are people who have had either horrible accidents, or they were born with something that went wrong, and then it's how they deal with it. So I'm interested in that, not so much oddity for the sake of oddity. But show me someone who will overcome something, yeah, I'm for that. Just like I like my superheroes to be normal people who overcome. That's why I like Peter Parker. He was just a normal guy in Queens who got bit by a radioactive spider.

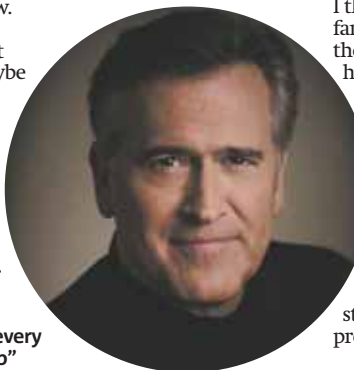

It's been over thirty years since Ash and the Evil Dead were first on screen, and while a lot of the people have probably visioned you as eventually playing a superhero, it's funny to see how Ash has kind of transcended that, in some ways, and has become a new kind of superhero. In some ways, he is just like Peter Parker where he is just a normal guy overcoming incredible odds. Does that legacy still amaze you?

Yeah, very much so, and I'm hoping that people can relate to in the same fashion with the show. They can look at that and go, "Man, I've got some difficulties, maybe I'll give this another shot." It is very inspiring, more than anything.

One thing about your career that makes you so prevalent is that your characters, like Ash, have built up a huge cult following. I feel like every five years or so "camp" becomes revitalized in pop culture. We just saw that at the Met Gala, as it being the main theme, and where I think people get so overloaded with how serious things are in Hollywood and on TV, and just in life in general, and it seems like you have always approached your role with a wink to the audience and a little grain of salt. Do you still find that quality to be important in approaching roles?

Of course. You want to be able to have people relate to you, and as a viewer, I like actors who will, my term is, "letting you in" they let you in. Some actors don't, they put up a façade and that's all you're gonna see is the façade. There's more to it, you can bring much more humanity... you know I got a high school capsule in the mail from a kid who was gonna kill himself, but then he saw a show that I did and it was life-affirming enough that he decided not to kill himself, so it's like we do have impact. You can positively impact people, not like that's my goal every morning when I wake up, but that's what [can happen]. They can actually help people rise up from a life that is undesirable...

METRO.US

The question now, I think, is why the fantasy movies and all these adventures and heroic movies are doing so well, because we are kind of looking for a hero right now. We need a hero. Marvel, they're turning the file cabinet upside down and looking for old Marvel stories... Trying to find any more superhero stories. It's amazing the proliferation.

People are looking for a story that is so far removed from actual life. Completely removed, and then when it's over you go, "Oh where is my Toyota Corolla parked?" In the fifth level of the parking structure, you get back to your normal life, after that. It's true, that's one purpose, I think, with Ripley's you're gonna see that people will be more encouraged and hopefully uplifted by the show, more than grossed out.

Knicks, Nets have connections to big-name free agents

With free agency almost a month away, both New York teams are linked with some big stars.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The commencement of the 2019 NBA Finals provides another step closer to a free-agency period this July that will severely alter the landscape of the league.

Both the New York Knicks and Brooklyn Nets are expected to be major players for some of the top names on the market in an attempt to start climbing toward the NBA mountaintop.

After all, it's been too long since New York basketball was at the forefront of the NBA.

While cash is usually king when it comes to wooing free-agent stars, connections don't necessarily hurt. And the Knicks and Nets have plenty with some marquee talents on the verge of switching teams this summer.

Metro takes a look at some added incentives the Knicks and Nets provide other than the promise of playing in the Big Apple:

- GM Scott Perry was the assistant GM of the Sonics when they drafted Durant in 2007.

- Assistant coach Royal Ivey was teammates with Durant on the Thunder. They are close friends.

- Durant's agent Rich Kleiman, is a well-known Knicks fans with ties to the organization.

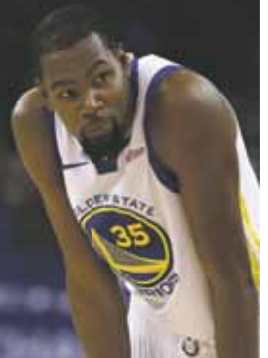

- Durant trained with Caris LeVert in 2017, developing a close friendship.

- He had a broken foot repaired by Dr. Martin O'Malley, the Nets' foot and ankle specialist.

- Adam Harrington, Durant's friend, is the Nets' director of player development and an assistant coach.

KEVIN DURANT

KYRIE IRVING

- Irving admitted that he strongly considered the Knicks before joining the Boston Celtics. However, it was when the team still had Kristaps Porzingis.

- He could still consider the Knicks should they land Kevin Durant, which will catapult their chances of contending in the Eastern Conference.

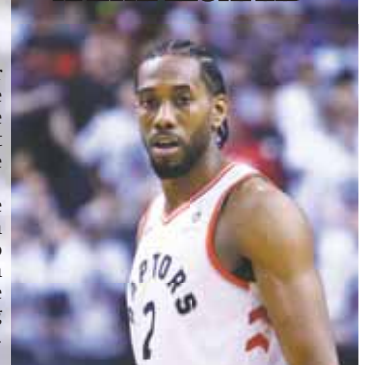

- The New Jersey native grew up a Nets fan and idolized Jason Kidd during the franchise's most successful run in the early 2000s. The franchise relocated to Brooklyn in 2012.

- They are currently the betting favorites to land Irving this summer, according to Vegas.

KAWHI LEONARD

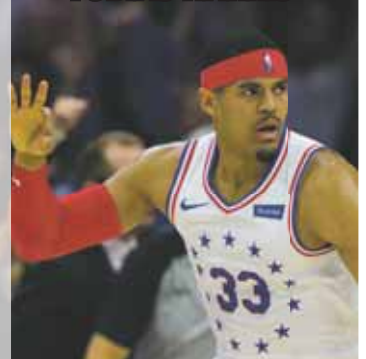

While a championship this summer could cement Leonard in Toronto for the foreseeable future, Leonard does have one pretty large connection to the Nets that could play a key role in free agency come July.

For three seasons, he worked alongside Nets general manager Sean Marks when he was an assistant for the San Antonio Spurs. Marks has a good relationship with Leonard's uncle, who played a large role in the Spurs holdout and the ensuing trade that sent the All-Star to the Raptors.

TOBIAS HARRIS

Harris and Nets head coach Kenny Atkinson are Long Island natives whose hometowns were just 15 minutes from each other.

Atkinson's brother, Steve, coached Harris' youngest brother, Terry at Half Hollow Hills West High School.

While the Philadelphia 76ers can offer Harris the most money this summer, a source told SNY's Anthony Puccio that the idea of the forward turning home to New York could make the Nets a favorite.
